The Hearing & Balance and Speech & Language Centers at the Institute for Well-Being offer an array of diagnostic and therapeutic services for Towson University faculty, staff, and student body as well as the surrounding community. These services are available for individuals of all ages and with all types of communication disorders and differences.

Audiological services include complete hearing testing, auditory processing testing, balance assessment, hearing aid evaluations and dispensing, cochlear implant follow-up services and universal newborn hearing screening. Audiologists evaluate and fit conventional, programmable, and digital hearing aids and assistive listening devices which can be purchased from the center.

Speech and language diagnostic evaluations and therapeutic services are available for children and adults experiencing difficulty with oral and/or written communication difficulties. Treatment is provided for the following types of communication disorders and differences: language, articulation, stuttering, hard of hearing, auditory processing, voice and aphasia.

Appointments can scheduled by calling 410-704-3095.
