

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY

History

The institution known today as Towson University opened its doors in 1866 in downtown Baltimore as the Maryland State Normal School, the only institution devoted exclusively to the preparation of teachers for the public schools of Maryland. The first class consisted of 11 students.

In 1915 the school moved to Towson. By 1935 it established the Bachelor of Science degree in education and changed its name to Maryland State Teachers College at Towson. In 1946 it introduced an arts and sciences program. The first graduate program (M.Ed. in Elementary Education) began in 1958. The institution expanded its offerings in the arts and sciences in 1963 and became Towson State College.

Towson was granted university status on July 1, 1976, in recognition of its development into a comprehensive university. In 1988, Towson State University joined the University System of Maryland. On July 1, 1997, Towson State University became Towson University, a change that reflected its evolution from a state-supported to a state-assisted institution. The first doctoral program (Au.D.) began in 2001. TU has now graduated over 125,000 students. Since 1960, Towson University has awarded more than 18,000 advanced degrees.

Towson University enrolls and graduates more undergraduate students from the region than any other institution. Enrollment for the 2017 fall term was 19,596 undergraduates and 3,109 graduate students.

The Campus

Towson University is situated on a beautifully landscaped, 329-acre campus in the suburban community of Towson, Md., just eight miles north of downtown Baltimore. - communicating effectively,
- gathering and evaluating information,
- thinking critically and meaningfully,

These skills are grounded in TU's long-standing commitment to a strong liberal education core that emphasizes an understanding of how the arts and sciences gather, evaluate, and apply information to reach valid conclusions. The core curriculum, combined with focused study in a chosen discipline and a commitment to students' co-curricular experience, serves to develop intellectual and social abilities that will guide students as contributing members of the workforce and of a democratic society.

The masters and applied doctoral programs build on the strengths of TU and are in areas that are fundamental to the development and vigor of the institution and the State of Maryland by conducting critical research that informs business, health care, and educational practices. The goal of these programs is to prepare ethically and globally minded professionals who are leaders in their fields.
